200 Teachers Discuss Educational Troubles

The teaching profession of today recognizes the need for a close relationship between itself and the public. It is called upon to serve, this was most clearly demonstrated at a lively and well attended teachers' convention held at the Vermilion school of agriculture on Thursday and Friday of last week.

P.M.C. Forging Ahead As Weather is Mild

Making the most of the exceptionally fine weather that this section of Alberta has enjoyed this fall, the P.M.C. and its hard working committee are making rapid advancement toward the final covering of the structure.

The eleven arches are now up in place and are receiving the finishing touches that will tie them together, making them capable of roof support, and snow and wind resistance. These have been constructed right on the location at a cost much lower than any other manufactured truss.

The side walls are being covered with shingles at the time of writing, and further cement work is in progress and once finished the foundations will then be completed.

Everything is being dovetailed together. The wall studs are being placed as soon as the cement foundations are hardened sufficiently. As they are nailed into place the siding is being applied by another crew, and in addition to the above a crew is busy constructing roof rafters so that the roof can be started on at any time.

A slight change has been made in the plans regarding the ice fence, but at no expense of the convenience and safety of the skaters or general public, but at a substantial saving in cost and material. The ice fence will be aligned along posts made of 2 inch pipe and as this is in very short supply this change will affect a great saving in time and material handling.

If it is possible for the weatherman to hold off snow and the accompanying cold for another week, the main headaches will be overcome and according to contractor E. (Gene) Torg, the roof of the construction will be clear sailing.

Building materials are being salvaged from the former abattoir site and good use being made of them. The figure of 60% salvage from the buildings at the old park site has been often quoted. Actually this figure is low and the material salvaged tends to prove a much higher rate of salvage ability. This is good news for everyone, for each stick, board or what have you, salvaged from the abattoir buildings is just that much less that will have to be bought. With the somewhat higher prices of the lumber and building phase, this means a substantial saving of P.M.C. money.

If the Star's readers have not visited the site of Wainwright's new arena they would be well advised to take a look for themselves. In all probability they will be surprised at the advancement made to date. From now on it's only a matter of time until what was destroyed by fire in 1929 will be better and bigger than ever, only in a different location.

We're Celebrating Our Birthday

Like the "Brook" in Tennyson's immortal poem, a newspaper just seems to go on forever. So be it with "The Star" for this week sees the commencement of the 41st year of publication with this issue. Last week's paper celebrated the 40th birthday of the Star's founding.

Quite a lot of water has gone under the bridge, or being true to form maybe we should say, quite a lot of newsprint has rolled from the presses since the first "Star" was published in 1908. It was on the first week of November of that year that the Star was born. There are still a few subscribers who remember the incident as if it were only yesterday.

Being rather new to the publication of newspapers, the Editor knows very little of the Star's history. The first editor was H. E. Cummer and since that time there have been no less than six different editors, of which the late W. J. Huntington held the post for the longest period of time, serving the citizens of the Wainwright district for over 30 years.

The Star has had four homes in the past 40 years, and today has one of the most, if not the most modern country printing plants and buildings to be found in Alberta. This is not an idle boast, but rather it is truth which can not be denied.

To get away from the "blowing" our own horn" idea, the Star has grown with the community and the surrounding district step by step, advancing with the general advancement of the district, staying motionless when times were not so prosperous. During this time the Star has grown and prospered no more or no less than other businesses in the town. Actually far less than some in comparison.

In this time advancement has been made in typography, style, make-up, news writing, advertising and all the hundred and one things that goes into the making of a paper worthy of its support. A newspaper is judged by the support it receives for it is one of the first businesses to go on the rocks if support is not forthcoming. We, the staff of the Star have every faith in Wainwright and the surrounding district. We foresee this as one of the richest agricultural districts in Alberta. Wainwright acting as a hub of a large wheel should win its proper place in an ever extending sphere.

Many readers never stop to ponder the proper and full meaning of a weekly paper, nor do they stop to think of the vast amount of effort which goes into the making of a sheet worthy to be read. A weekly paper is the hand on the pulse of its community, recording its ups and downs, bringing news of the folks we all know so well. To offer criticisms or to offer praise when each is called for, to bring an advertising message to its readers, all part of the daily functioning of the weekly paper.

The Star does that, or tries to do that in the best manner capable of its Editor and staff. It is the aim of that same Editor and staff to make "The Star" a clean newspaper, a paper that can go into the home and no one will be ashamed to read out loud no matter the age group present. We fully realize that at times we are in the news that we wish we could print, and don't that would sell extra copies. That is not our purpose in life, for to do so would only bring ruin on many people and ultimately on itself.

So in closing, we state that this week we are celebrating a birthday. Forty years ago an idea was made into a reality, and today forty years later you are reading this. After 40 years you might suggest that "The Star" is getting old. Maybe, but it has been said many times that you are as old as you feel, and if this is the case we are not much past the toddling stage. After another 40 years we should about reach the adolescence period and really begin to live.

Wee King and Queen Crowned at Show

Something in the way of a novel contest for Wainwright was held during the week previous to the "Fun For You" program when twenty-seven babies and small children were entered in the Popularity Baby Contest.

Each child had a decorated jar displayed in some local business place where friends and supporters could count one vote for each penny donated to their favorite babies' jar.

This created a great deal of enthusiasm and interest. On Friday night the votes were counted. Master David MacNeill was found to be in the leading position for King and little Miss Dorothy Woods was eligible for Queen. For Prince and Princess Master Brian Fessenden and little Miss Mary Beverly Maddox received the most votes. The Queen and Princess received lovely little gold lockets and the King and Prince got gold signet rings.

These tiny tots were crowned Friday night during the program.

Safe Blowing at Jarrow Nets Thugs Large Haul

A safe blowing at Jarrow on Sunday afternoon, October 24th, will be interesting to Wainwrighters. The culprits are still at large at the time of writing.

The crime was committed sometime between the closing of the business Saturday night and early Sunday morning. Owners of the safe were McCune General Store, and the loss is reported to be approximately $2,000. The safe blowers entered the building and carted the safe away about half a mile from the town. There they forced the dial off and broke the hinges, making it very easy to force the safe door open. The loss was made up of $500.00 in cash and $1500.00 in cheques, and grain tickets.

This is one of a series of six safe cracking cases that have occurred in this part of Alberta within the last four weeks. Other cases have been reported at Bruce, Lavooy and Innisfree.

The business men of Wainwright and district would be well advised to take extra precautions at this season of the year, as this is usually the time when safe voyagers are on the alert. A little precaution now might mean less trouble later.

Inez Doreen Harden Wed in Calgary

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the Central United Church, Calgary at 7 p.m., Wednesday, August 5, when Rev. Gordon Lapp united in marriage Inez Doreen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hixson of Wainwright and James Grant, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Brebner of Wetaskiwin.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. W. J. Angus, the bride was charmingly gowned to ivory satin. The floor-length gown featured a net yoke, set off by a trimming of accordion pleated satin, and elbow length tanter sleeves of net. The floor length skirt, ending in a "eight train, featured a torso waist line, trimmed with accordion pleats to match the neckline. A full length veil of French illusion net was Best man was Mr. Gordon Groves and Mr. Wilfred Brebner and Mr. Robert Groves ushered the guests to the pews daintily marked with sweet peas and baby's breath.

During the signing of the register, Miss Colleen Groves sang "O Perfect Love" accompanied by Mr. Robson at the organ. Miss Groves wore an afternoon gown of mauve and a corsage of sweet peas.

Following the ceremony, a reception to forty people was held at the Harris Skyroom. The bride's table was laid in white, centred with the three-tiered wedding cake, flanked by tall white tapers, and vases of dark red and white gladioli and rose asters, surrounded by pink streamers. The beautifully decorated cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom under an arch. Mr. P. A. Armstrong, former employer of the bride, proposed the toast to the bride, which was ably responded to by the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Harden wore a street length dusty rose dress with matching hat and black accessories, and a corsage of sweet peas. Mother of the groom, Mrs. Brebner chose a black dress with rose accessories, and a corsage of pink roses.

The young couple spent a honeymoon at Banff and Lake Louise and Pigeon Lake. For her going away ensemble the bride chose a beige gingham suit with accessories, and a corsage of rose camellias.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were, Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Collette, Miss Colleen Groves, Mr. and Mrs. Frank George, Mrs. M. Hixson, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Muir, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. O'Neill, Mr. and Mrs. C. Brebner and Miss Isabel Brebner, all of Wetaskiwin; Mrs. W. Brown of Carleton Place, and Mrs. M. Nelson of Blackie.

The young couple will reside in Wetaskiwin.

"Fun For You" Plays To Packed House Both Nights

"Fun For You", a local talent production, sponsored by the O.R.P.F. Lodge of Wainwright, played to a packed house at both performances last Thursday and Friday, October 28th and 29th, in the Separate School Auditorium.

The "Fun For You" program was a take off on several radio broadcasts produced by local talent on the Wainwright Stage. The audience saw possibilities such as the "Tell Me A Story Lady" and her cast of small children, Joe Kelly and the Quia Kids, the complete cast of National Bandstand, Tom Brennan and his Breakfast in Hollywood gang, and many other national personalities.

Dr. I. Q. distributed some silver dollars through the audience. If the contestants were fortunate enough to answer his questions. In most cases the audience appeared not too clever or the questions too tough, thus a saving on silver dollars for Dr. I. Q.

Both performances were very well received, although Thursday night's received a little more applause. It might possibly be that the performance was better, or it might be that Thursday's audience was a little more responsive. The actual production went off better on the Friday night show. Thursday's seemed to be a comedy of errors in several spots. It is doubtful that these were noticed by the audience to any large degree. At one time the curtain rope became caught in something which kept the curtain from going up smoothly on the opening of a play. Another incident occurred when the curtain rope broke and brought the curtain down with a resounding bang, and when it had to be fixed between scenes the common backstage was enough to keep the audience guessing as to what was being hidden. All in all the audience took the "noticeable" errors promptly and were just as much more enthused as it happened to be fun for them.

In the Breakfast in Hollywood scenes, Tom Brennan handed out bouquets to two well deserving persons on the "Good Good Neighbor" part. The first night Mrs. W. Harley was called to the stage to receive the prize, and on the second night Mr. Kenney received recognition for his outstanding community service.

This portion of the program was a complete surprise for the two above mentioned persons, but the Star thinks that these two people were deserving of the public recognition they received. In Mr. Torg's own words he said, "Did you ever see a politician when given the opportunity to speak at an actual loss for words?" This is the reaction which both Mr. Harley and Mr. Torg had. They were taken completely by surprise.

The comments heard on the morning following both performances indicate that this type of entertainment could be repeated from time to time. The public were pleased, and were in most cases unaware of the talent available locally. It is a well known fact that the public at large enjoyed the show, and the ladies of the Royal Purple are to be congratulated on their efforts in bringing such sparkling entertainment to Wainwright.

THE RAILWAYS AND THE NATION

Every so often we read with interest some of the free publicity which comes across the Editor's desk. Most of it is never opened, but when an article comes from B. J. Deachman we read it, and then in most cases throw it away. Not so with the following article, for in our mind it seems to make sense and we are publishing it in its entirety.

Mr. Deachman is an economist living in Ottawa, who devotes his daily work to problems of the economy of Canada and the world. As stated above he lives in Ontario, which might tend to warp his judgment, for on such a controversial question as Freight Rates, it seems that where you live governs your point of view. However, we reprint his article and if there are exceptions to it, Mr. Deachman will supply answers. (The Editor)

I asked a man I know in the Bureau of Statistics the other day to give me the general wholesale price of commodities in 1898. "Yes," he answered, "just wait a minute." He came back with the facts, "45.6, basis 1926 equals 100." "What was the latest figure?" "152.0 that is for July of this year." "Can you tell me about the price of wheat in 1898?" "93c a bushel No. 1, Northern Winnipeg, No. 2 Western oats, Winnipeg, 85c a bushel." "Choice butcher steers in Toronto at that time averaged $3.80 a hundred pounds; select hogs were selling at $4.87.

Look again at that item of $3.86, the present price level is 313 times the 1898 level. A dollar in 1898 would carry you as far as $3.33 today. In other words there has been an increase over the 1898 level of 233%. Have I made my point clear?

Low Freight Rates

Why did I want to go back to 1898? Well, there's a fight on right now in regard to railway freight rates and I thought that certain comparisons might be of value. The West holds that freight rates are too high. The average cost of moving wheat from prairie points to the head of the Lakes is 20c a hundred pounds. The rate is the same as it was in 1898 but if the farmer is paying for it with wheat at current prices it will take roughly one-half as many pounds of wheat to pay the freight as it did in 1898. Is that a fair rate? Can you name another commodity or service to which this statement would apply?

Nature made a mistake in this country, it should have put Lake Superior three or four hundred miles further west than it does now and heavy freight would have moved, by water, that much further west. It might have hurt the railways a bit but it would have been pleasant for the people but by a strange bit of fortune or misfortune, depending upon the point of view, something happened that put freight rates on wheat in Western Canada at a very low rate, perhaps lower than they would have had with the added water passage I have suggested.

Crow's Nest Rates

Back in 1898 the C.P.R. wanted to build a railroad in to the Crow's Nest Country in Southern B.C. and it wanted government assistance at that time for this particular purpose. The Government came through with a grant of $3,000,000 and in return the Canadian Pacific Railway gave a rate on wheat to the head of the Lakes which was thought to be very low—20c per hundred pounds—this rate went into effect in September 1899. Of course, at the time, this applied only to the existing mileage of the C.P.R.—the C.P.R. being the only railway in the West at that time. Later on, in 1922, the Government made the Crow's Nest rates arbitrary on all railways throughout the West.

Past and Future

How do the railways live despite this situation and how is it that the West is so strong in its opposition to any changes in rates no matter what happens? Sometimes when I think of these things I feel that all long-time contracts should be subject to adjustment every five or ten years but as a matter of fact the adjustment is rarely made. We wait until the damage has been done and then search for some roundabout way of easing the situation—but not until it is too late.

But aren't our railways prosperous? Yes, in a way, but not so prosperous as they were and they face difficult times. History sometimes repeats itself. Most grown people remember that only a short time ago the railways were up against it. The C.P.R., for some years, skipped dividends on its common stock. The dividends of the C.N.R. ran to $60,000,000 a year. Gross railway revenues in Canada fell from a boom time peak of $492.1 million in 1920 to $293.4 million in 1932.

This was not good for the nation's credit, it was not an indication of national prosperity and I remember in 1920 there were those who thought that good times would last forever and in 1929 they believed that the stock market would continue to go up and up but there came a time . . . Again history may repeat itself. I am not writing this to chill your blood but prices are now on top of a plateau—so are costs and if prices come down and costs stay up—and that may happen, we shall have tough times, they may be quite tough.

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA

Finance Minister Abbott told the Canadian housewives that they will have more fresh vegetables in their kitchen this winter but the rent on the house likely will be from 30 to 15 per cent higher.

With Canada's dollar status gradually improving, he eased import controls. Starting Nov. 1, open general permits will be authorized for imports of lettuce and tomatoes from the United States and other countries.

Later in the winter similar general permits will be authorized for cabbage, carrots, celery and spinach.

This will be in addition to larger quantities of citrus fruits and fruit juices which will be permitted entry. But on the rent front, there was no succor for the housewife. Instead Mr. Abbott announced a general 10 per cent boost on rental ceilings and a further five per cent boost where heat is provided by land lords.

However, Mr. Abbott said the government did not intend vacating the rental controls field entirely, that is, unless the provinces wanted to take over.

He said when the controls expire March 31, 1949, the government will ask parliament to extend them for another year, but if any province wants to take over, the dominion will vacate the field in that province and even pay the costs of the first year of provincial administration.

Meanwhile, Mr. Abbott said all increases granted may not be enforced by landlords until current leases expire.

10 Per Cent Boost

Specifically, here is what Mr. Abbott announced:

1. Landlords, who didn't take advantage of the May, 1947, increase, may charge an additional 10 per cent increase above the current ceiling.

2. He can also charge another five per cent increase if he supplies heat to his tenants.

3. If his tenants vacate his premises legally after Nov. 1, the accommodation becomes free of controls. The amount of rent he charges and his future tenants are his own business. This doesn't apply to sponsors or to persons who share accommodation.

4. A landlord who bought housing accommodation before November a year ago can ask the tenant to vacate the accommodation next May if he can show that he needs the place for himself and his family. If he gets the accommodation under these terms, he cannot rent or sell it before April 1, 1950.

5. But if a landlord pleads hardship before a Commissioner and it is shown he is suffering greater hardship than his tenant, he may obtain permission to occupy a house which he has purchased at any time.

6. Parliament will be asked to extend the rent controls for another year after next March 31. But if a province wants to take over, the government will vacate the rentals field in the province and even pay first-year costs of provincial administration.

British Columbia war veterans said they would ask the B.C. Government to step into the field and hold the line on rent ceilings.

Ontario Premier Kennedy said his cabinet would have to consider the Abbott proposals "thoroughly" before making a decision.

In Ottawa the war veterans' association of the civil service said the increases would mean a boost in the cost of living and the immediate necessity for government cost-of-living bonuses to civil servants.

Iron But No Steel

Canada, a government official explained, has plenty of iron which she can make into steel—nevertheless the country faced a critical steel shortage last week.

The problem was a general lack of pouring capacity. To meet this problem, Trade Minister Howe last week called in the Dominion's principal steel producers. He spoke to their chieftains privately, one at a time.

What he asked was this: Can the steel industry solve this critical shortage? The answer is expected in about two weeks.

The solution, it appeared, was in the immediate construction of a blast furnace with 1,000-ton-a-day pouring capacity. This, the Canadian Press was told, may take two years to do.

Meanwhile, Canada was short about 600,000 tons of ingots a year. Her only import source, the United States, was in dire need of steel herself. An agreement was announced by Mr. Howe whereby Canada would reduce her imports from the U.S. by about 18 per cent of her general 1948 import level.

It meant less structural and other forms of steel for Canadian manufacturers. But certain projects, certain steel needs were assured of priority.

Joe Rutledge Says

By Joseph Lister Rutledge

TWO MEN

One man dies and the civilized world grieves. Another dies and hearts leap with relief. It is the tribute to a conscience and a life.

Dr. Edward Benes led his country in the way of democracy. In the face of disillusionment and apparent betrayal he was faithful to a belief and never wavered in the generous road he had chosen.

Andrei Zhdanov also followed an unwavering road, but there were few to mourn him. He had a great funeral in the Red Square in Moscow. All the Politburo, the power of Russia, was there. Foreign Minister Molotov, now the undisputed second man in Moscow, delivered the oration while Marshal Stalin looked on approving. But neither of them mourned. Molotov had feared the little zealot who stood ahead of him in the confidence of the Party. Stalin, once his friend, had seen him outlast his usefulness. The Cominform the instrument of Zhdanov's devising, had brought a rift among the satellites and had permitted the little despots like Tito to strut and posture and defy the all powerful Soviet Union.

Nobody liked that. So the rumor was not down that the mourning of Molotov and Stalin had a dubious sound. You don't mourn those you fear. Zhdanov induced fear. He was the confident and vocal champion of the irrepressible conflict between West and East. He was the driving force behind it. Stalin was troubled by the growing antagonisms within Russia and without that could not be denied. Living, Zhdanov could drive his fellows by the very zeal of his course, and the fear of appearing less zealous. That is the strength and the weakness of all despots.

House No Burden If Properly Run

Sheffield, England—Organizers of a school for nagging wives say that after a month's course the women will return home happier and more efficient.

"Nagging wives are rarely thrown" said Mrs. Mary Morris of Sheffield Council of Social Service which is to run the school. "They are nervous depressed women who have let housework, shopping and babies get them down."

"We are negotiating for a country mansion where we can take 40 mothers and their children. We shall run it as a normal home to show that a home, if properly managed, need not be a burden."

Applications Called For Nurses Aides

A call for new applicants to take the Nursing Aides training course was issued today by Miss J. P. Ferguson, Supervisor of the School operated jointly under the Canadian Vocational Training plan and the Alberta Department of Health. In seeking applicants, Miss Ferguson stated that present arrangements will be ended in December of the present year. "Many opportunities exist for girls and women who complete the forty weeks course," Miss Ferguson stated. "The hours of work and salary schedule are most attractive, and the need for Certified Nursing Aides in the rural and community hospitals is great."

Starting as a vocational training course for ex-service women who were interested in the care of the sick, the course was later offered to all Alberta women, some of whom have years of experience as practical nurses. Those completing the course are eligible for certificates and annual incomes which enable them to take positions in hospitals throughout Alberta. Miss Ferguson pointed out that Certified Nursing Aides are not to be confused with practical nurses, Ward Aides, or graduate nurses. Certified Nursing Aides help to fill the need for women trained to relieve registered nurses of many of the duties which are placing a heavy burden on many hospital staffs.

Standard salary schedule for a 48 hour week as approved by the Nursing Aides Council begins at $90.00 per month for the first six months, increasing to $110.00 per month during the third year. Full maintenance which includes room, board and laundry of uniforms is deductible at the rate of $25.00 per month.

Nearly two hundred women and girls from various Alberta centres have successfully completed the Nursing Aides training, Miss Ferguson stated. These trainees are now helping to relieve the shortage of registered nurses in the Province. Many have come from Saskatchewan to take the course, and all are now being employed by Alberta hospitals and nursing centres. "There is a means to financial independence," said Miss Ferguson, "that many western girls are quick to appreciate. Most of them continue as Certified Nursing Aides, but others of them have used the training to continue their studies so that they are eligible for entrance into Alberta's Nurse Training Schools. Either way, the training provides an opportunity for older women and girls to become a part of a highly-respected service, so essential to their own communities and the Province of Alberta."

Canada's Dental Health Picture Claimed Menace

Canada's dental health picture is a menace because no steps have been taken by the Canadian people to see that the condition is remedied, it is stated by Dr. S. L. Honey in "Our Dental Health Picture is a Menace" in the current issue of the magazine "HEALTH".

Dr. Honey reveals that during the war it was learned that 30 per cent of young Canadian men and women examined by the armed services were "dental cripples"—unreliable risks under vigorous conditions—and that even now there is no reason to believe that any improvement has occurred.

The "startling dental health" of our young adults is something that "aroes us right" when consideration is given to the neglect which has been meted out to children, the writer states. At present Dr. Honey is in charge of the dental public health program, financed by the Ontario Division of the Red Cross, and carried on for the past two years in Welland in cooperation with the Welland and District Health Unit.

His article in HEALTH, which is the official magazine of the Health League of Canada reveals that results of the experiment have been decidedly encouraging and show it is possible to rid the nation of this scourge once the people become fully aroused to the danger. The writer reports that in one Welland district township alone—one which had no health service prior to 1946—the average number of cavities per child in the first survey was 5.1. The 1947-48 survey reveals only 2.6 cavities. In one class in the Welland and Vocational School, the average number of cavities dropped from 3.8 to 1.1 in the last year. Dr. Honey writes that Canadians will not get out of their dental "wilderness" by following the present route.

To get rid of the dental decay scourge, he suggests that preventive dentistry should be begun before teeth erupt in a child's mouth, use of diets low in foods containing sugars and starches, and that parents in municipalities where public dental services are available, take full advantage of such services.

"Don't wait for the government or the dentists to take action," Dr. Honey advises. "They have their own problems. If enough parents really want good dental health for their children, they will set the wheels in motion and get it."

U.S. Campaign Against Pests in 550 Cities

Chicago—The United States pest population is taking a trouncing. Rats have died like flies, and flies have died like rats in organized drives this year.

The National Committee for Rat Control and the United States Fish and Wildlife Service enlisted citizens in 550 cities for the campaign. New York City called its plan "the greatest city-wide, all-out drive of its kind ever undertaken." All municipal departments co-operated in a clean-up of alleys, lots, docks and buildings.

Expensive figure there are more rats than people. They spread disease. They consume or contaminate 200,000,000 bushels of United States grain each year. They're responsible for damage and losses that add up to about $2,000,000,000 annually. So it's cheaper to liquidate them.

Battle Pests

Plans of attack usually call for these steps:
Kill 'em. Give them poisons. Catch them in traps. Pump lethal gases into their burrows.
Starve 'em. Keep anything they can eat out of their reach or put it in gnaw-proof containers.
Exict 'em. Remove heaps of trash, pile lumber, barrels, boxes and bricks on racks at least a foot above the floor or ground.

Keep 'em out. Make homes and stores rat-proof. Place heavy screens on low windows. Put sheet metal sheaths on the bottoms of doors. Block pipe inlets and other openings with cement or sheet metal.

War on flies and other insects was waged on a broad front through the summer. The United States Junior Chamber of Commerce reports anti-fly drives were conducted in 300 cities.

The major weapon was DDT. It was sprayed on refuse dumps, swamps, food and meat shops, restaurants, parks, fair grounds, buildings, window and door screens, and swabbed on the walls and ceilings of chicken coops and porches.

Farmers sprayed their barns and livestock. Meat animals freed of flies gained more weight and cows gave more milk.

Check Farm Damage By Holiday-Makers

London—A census to show how much damage trespassers do to farms and crops throughout Britain is being taken by the National Farm ers' Union.

"Serious damage is done to crops every year by holiday-makers, and we want to find out if the damage is sufficient to justify an effort to have the law altered on trespassing."

said Clifford Spencer, chairman. "Many farmers complain of gates being left open, of people tramping through fields of young grain and allowing their dogs to worry sheep. Others complain of blackberry and mushroom gatherers, people who knock down fences and of thieving by gypsies."

Those who continue to shrink from responsibility — continue to shrink.

We opened by singing "The More We Get Together," followed by roll call of "A case for the block," to which fifteen responded.

A letter of thanks was read from the Wainwright Municipal Hospital for the complete room furnishing. Mrs. Dalton read the article in the Edmonton Journal to say we had won a Twenty Dollar prize in the Bette's Farm Home Competition. LIBRARY NOTES

At the annual meeting it was decided that during the week of November 7th to 13th the Library would be kept open every afternoon from 3 to 5:30 p.m. and on Saturday evening from 7 until 9 p.m. It is hoped that this will give everyone an opportunity to visit the Library and look over the books.

Here are some items pertaining to the Library: There are 1561 books in the Adult Section and 796 in the Children's Department. Most of the adult books are fiction but there are quite a number of biographies and "travel" books.

The cards are divided into four groups: Children—up to 12 years—10c; Children—12 years to 15 years or Grade IX—25c; Young Moderns—High School Students or young people up to 18 years—50 cents; Adults—$1.00.

Twenty four books may be taken out on each card. Books may be kept for two weeks plus one week renewal if wished. There are no extra charges for any book.

During this week all books that are overdue may be returned and only a maximum fine of 25 cents will be charged on adult books and 5 cents on children's books.

Minutes of Annual meeting will appear next week.

SEA CADET NOTES

The week of October 17 to 24 was Navy Week in Canada and since we have a naval unit here it was following this the lunch com-brought to the fore by the editorial of Mr. Huntington and by the kind act of the Wainwright Merchants in putting posters in their windows.

A church parade was held on October 24. The whole ships company marching to the Anglican church to the time of P.O. Pilgrim's drum. Here the R.C. parade fell out and went on to their church. Rev. Smith gave a stirring address on the British naval traditions, the Command Padre from the camp doing the same for the R.C. parade.

In the afternoon Cadets turned out to help unload trucks at the P.M.C. and also to sort lumber.

The Cadets have been undergoing rifle drill and the Cenolaph party for the Nov. 11 parade is drilling hard. The Cadets will march in the parade with the veterans.

Monday, Nov. 1, patrols of the Senior Cadets turned out to aid Constable Patterson in checking any too boisterous spirits that took place Halloween night.

Dormitory Doings

A very enjoyable Halloween party was put on by the dormitory students in the dormitory Thursday evening, October 28th, the late leave night for the week.

At 8:30 the students and supervisors, all wearing colorful Halloween paper hats designed and made by the Matron, Mrs. Carter, gathered in the recreation room which had been artistically decorated for the occasion by the decorating committee.

Under the direction of the Masters of Ceremonies, Ken Cornfield and Dan MacGowan the program was begun with Truth or Consequences, mainly consequences, coming to the audience over a radio carefully constructed by local mechanics. This part of the program was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Among the Consequences Harold (Tiny) had to lap up milk out of a saucer on the floor. Dad was blindfolded and instructed to propose to the first person he met. Vivian was told to call a certain phone number and ask for a date while Annamie was asked to sing a solo. Chloe was blindfolded and told to kiss the first person she came in contact with Margaret was the one who benefited by this stunt much to the envy of the boys.

Allan contributed a very fine gut-mouth organ selection.

In the car and truck contest conducted by Colin, the crowd was divided into pairs and Cecil and Lynn won. Genevieve then started two teams off on a game with toothpicks and life savers which provided lots of amusement.

Miss Erickson of the public school staff acted as pianist and led in a sing-song.

The final contest contributed by Mother was for each one to guess the article of food or drink in the picture pinned on his or her back. Following this the lunch committee took over and served a very fine lunch in the dining room. At the close of the lunch period it was Norma who working on the inquisitive nature of her pals, brought the evening's frolic to a sudden end by rushing upstairs to answer the door and calling down Jo Vivian who had a date for that time of the evening. Everyone suddenly decided they wanted to be in the scene and so the social evening ended.

We were all very sorry to lose one of our fine young ladies last week.

Mr. P. Olson of Chauvin and Ernest Carter visited at the dormitory last Sunday afternoon.

Bob Dalton of Paken, a dorm resident last year, called at the dorm last Saturday evening and announced he was leaving on a holiday trip to Vancouver and other points.

Antelope Season Open Shortly

Open season for antelope between October 25 and November 13 inclusive in certain areas has been authorized by Order-in-Council No. 1100 46, dated October 7.

Order provides that holders of a special antelope license may hunt and kill one antelope, male or female in that part of the Province comprising townships one to seven, inclusive, and range one to 10, inclusive, west of the fourth meridian. Excluded from this area are sections 26, 27, 34, 35 and 36 in township seven, range one, west of the fourth meridian.

The open area described, is situated in the south-east corner of the Province immediately south of the Cypress Hills Forest Reserve.

For a non-resident antelope license is $60, for a resident license $5. Licenses may be obtained from Game Branch, Administration Building, Edmonton or Game Branch, Old Telephone Building, Calgary.

A sport almost died in Canada and few people heard its death throes. But the few that did managed to bring lacrosse—Canada's official national game—back to its wobbly feet and start it on the road to recovery.

Lacrosse, the game of the Indian and the gutted stick, started its decline in the '20s and its popularity decreased steadily for years. It picked up only after box lacrosse—its indoor, ice-bound cousin—became known—was introduced, with seven men instead of 12 playing on a small field.

Main credit for keeping afloat the small lacrosse spark during the long days of its illness goes to two provinces—British Columbia and Ontario.

That the game did survive poor leadership, disinterest among sports fans and the lack of good players, points up the merits of lacrosse, played in this country before the coming of the white man.

It's the youngsters who brought and are continuing to bring the sport back into the limelight—kids from the west coast where the greatest recovery has taken place, and others from southern Ontario where in any smaller centres a child has a lacrosse stick in his hand before he starts school.

Even Quebec has started to show interest and a league was formed about a year ago with teams from both Ontario and Quebec.

It's a rugged game for rugged players, but it's a good sport and lacks only the concerted effort and promotion of smart business men and promoters to put it across with the general public.

Not Consume!

A glance back at the American League baseball season brings to mind a startling thought—1946 might have been the year venerable Connie Mack was tagged with the nickname "Lippy" or "Gabby."

The 85-year-old manager of Philadelphia Athletics during the campaign retired one of his sons because of old age, clashed with an umpire, and fired two of his players.

Mack retired his son Earl in his mid-50s, who had been serving as his dad's assistant.

During mid-season Mack started the baseball world by talking back to umpire Art Passarella, who had called a game because of weather.

The action allowed New York Yankees to defeat the A's 2-1.

"You should have called the game earlier," fumed Mack who belligerently jostled the umpire.

His firing of two pitchers occurred almost at the start of the season when he dismissed Nelson Potter and Bill Dietrich.

Potter, relief pitcher against St. Louis, allowed in four runs. When he went to the bench, Mack asked if he was doing his best. Potter said he was, whereupon he was fired.

Dietrich complained he wasn't used enough and wanted his release.

"You've got it," roared Mack.

Some leaders of the hygiene drive have advocated tightening the Food and Drugs Adulteration Act, but most efforts have centred on educating bakers, butchers, waitresses and shop clerks in the fundamentals of antiseptics. It has become evident that many of the country's food-handlers have never heard of the germ theory of disease.

Last summer there was an epidemic of food poisoning. The number of outbreaks reported to health authorities increased more than 10 times in six years—from 47 cases in 1940 to 506 in 1946—and since then the figure has gone higher.

The courts have handled cases of cigaret butts found in loaves of bread and a mouse found in a school-boy's bottle of milk.

Now the war on germs is on, with the Ministry of Food, local aldermen, women members of the Labor Party, and the British Tourist and vacation board joining the battle.

Mayor Rhums Nall Polish.

Most of the crusaders rely on pamphlets and slogans, but a few have more original ideas. One of them Major Jack Simpson of the London Borough of Lambeth, announced:

"I object to ladies serving in restaurants with their nails plastered up with all kinds of funny stuff that gets mixed up with the food."

"Both the Mayor and I have refused food served by such people at public functions," he told a meeting of butchers, bakers, dairymen, confectioners and cafe owners.

Birmingham's health committee has decided to try "friendly persuasion" to induce owners of taverns to stop washing glasses "all night long in the same bowl of cold water."

Tavern-keepers have been invited to see "horrible" documentary films showing how unsanitary conditions breed and spread disease.

Dr. Edith Summerskill, Parliamentary secretary to the Food Ministry, told a convention of labor party women that the ministry is working out model food production by-laws to be used by local authorities, and "codes of practice" for various food trades.

Moved by Mr. Lawson that we adjourn until 1:30 p.m. Cd. Metropolitan School.

We are pleased to advise that the New Metropolitan School is complete and was formally opened with a dance and card party on October 16th. A very fine job has been done by Mr. Craig.

Moved by Mr. Lawson that a letter of appreciation be written to Mr. J. Craig of Irma regarding the fine job that he has done on the New Metropolitan School, Cd.

Secretary was instructed to write to the Department of Education for permission to sell the old school building at Metropolitan.

Moved by Mr. Lawson that the matter of the new basement for the Cresthill School building at Ribstone be left in the hands of Dr. Foster.

WINNIEP—Some of Prof. C. J. Albrecht's friends term him Manitoba's "best advertiser."

The pursuit of big game hunter, photographer, naturalist and museum curator have prevented any moments from creeping into his life.

Prof. Albrecht, who has just been studying the migration of the caribou in northern Manitoba, now has returned to his home at Homewood, Chicago, July 26.

He said he had shown two previous films he had made in the north-land to about 100,000 people in all parts of the United States. He retired three years ago from Chicago's Museum of Natural History, where he had been for 23 years.

"My audiences in the U.S. are interested in what goes on in the north," he said in an interview, "they want to know about mining, farming, all about Churchill and his value as a military base. The whole north-land is mysterious to them."

Prof. Albrecht makes his expeditions alone. He's handled a gun since he was a youngster; has killed everything from widens to elephants.

His motto has been, "don't point a gun at anything you don't want to kill." So far it's worked well, for he has never had an accident in the 30 expeditions he has made from Alaska and the Arctic to Siberia, and Africa.

The film he has just completed is a "true adventure story," he says.

"It (the film) shows tourists visiting Churchill and other northern towns, the visit of the governor-general to Manitoba's north-land this summer, Indians and Eskimos."

Prof. Albrecht termed caribou the "lifeblood of the north." They need protection, he said. Their hide is valuable for moosehairs and other articles of clothing, and caribou meat is a staple of northerners.

In his 38 years of museum work, he has served as curator of Washington state museum and at the Museum of Natural History in New York.

"I like what I am doing or I wouldn't stay with it," he said, "and the chances are that I'll be back again."

THIEF WITH CONSCIENCE

Olds—a thief with a conscience made things easy for police in this town, 65 miles north of Calgary. He stole a quantity of candy, cigarettes and flashlights from a service station. Police found the swag next morning in a trailer at the rear of the building. The thief had moved on.

"I like what I am doing or I wouldn't stay with it," he said, "and the chances are that I'll be back again."

OLD FURNITURE
RESURRECTED BY PAINT AND VARNISH

Aluminum foil is the latest answer of industry to that old bugaboo of the amateur painter—harding of the paint brush between coats. It has been found that if a paint-filled brush is wrapped lightly in aluminum foil, it will retain its pliable condition for several days so that it is ready to use on an instant's notice later on. Thus, the old business of cleaning paint brushes between coats can be eliminated. The foil, incidentally, can be used over and over again.

From the jungles of Sierra Leone and Nigeria soon may come a new commercial substitute for the linseed oil so essential in paint making. The substitute is known as copra oil.

After four years of searching, a British research team has found that the woody coniferous pine bears seeds containing a cream-colored oil closely resembling linseed in quality and odor. Extensive tests have indicated that the oil behaves well in paints and varnishes.

The high cost of new furniture has pressed into service many an old coat-off long since relegated to the attic or the basement. Housewives are finding that a few changes in design and a coat or two of paint can make old furniture sparkle like new—and the cost is small.

First step in the renovating process is to streamline the furniture by stripping off all glued-on trim, inlaid mirror-holders and elaborate shelf structures. New drawer pulls to replace long-outdated designs will help lend a newer look too.

Old paint finishes should be removed by brushing on a good paint and varnish remover which softens the original finish within a few minutes so that it can be scraped off easily with a dull-edged putty-knife. All traces of the remover should then be eliminated by thorough washing with soap and warm water.

After the stripped-down piece is thoroughly dry (it should be left overnight after a bath like that), it can be rubbed down lightly with fine sand-paper and then stained, varnished or enameled in the color of your choice. Allow ample time for thorough drying before applying a second coat, and sand-paper lightly between coats to eliminate any "nibs" or dust-marks.

A man who doesn't care who gets the credit is the greatest credit to his nation.

CONFIRMATION OF
200 TEACHERS' PROPOSALS
EDUCATIONAL PROBLEMS

Education, Calgary, refused to allow the convention to forget the importance of the elementary teacher in the educational system. Mr. A. A. Aldridge from the provincial department of education stressed the ever-increasing importance in our highly skilled society of an adequate guidance program which would make the utmost use of every student's talents and guide them towards a more complete life.

A.T.A. Officials Speak
Early Friday morning, Mr. A. Aalborg, Vice-President of the A.T.A. and Mr. L. Olson pointed out that the provincial government was definitely making the profession more attractive by providing one of the best pension schemes in Canada for its teachers. They mentioned that in recent years teachers' salaries have steadily increased across the province but that these increases have barely kept pace with the rising costs of living. The Vermilion teachers indicated their interest in the betterment of education within the division when they passed resolutions requesting the establishment of an adequate health program and the setting up of home economics and shop classes.

Prof. Tweedie Speaks at Banquet
Thursday evening provided the needed relaxation from this heavy agenda. At 8:00 o'clock the main banquet hall was filled by some 150 teachers and guests. At this banquet Prof. Tweedie from the extension department of the U. of A. entertained and stimulated his hearers with a talk on the place Canada takes in the present international situation. Later in the evening 240 patrons danced to the music of Sprake's orchestra.

For the success and smooth running of this extensive program much credit must go to Mr. J. A. Smith, Kitscoty, and Mr. S. Olsonberg, Mannville.

A.T.A. Local Elect Officers
On Friday morning the A.T.A.

locals of the three divisions represented at the convention, Wainwright, Vegreville and Vermilion, met at separate sessions and elected their officers for the coming year. The results of the elections were as follows:

Wainwright Division A.T.A.
President—Donald Gunn, Irma
Vice-Pres.—H. Wilson, Wainwright
Sec.—Treas.—Hugh Teskey, Wainwright
Councillors—G. Clarence Welsh, Edmonton; C. Cromie, Wainwright.

Vegreville Division A.T.A.
President—Donald Gunn, Irma
Vice-Pres.—G. Hovits, Hainbury
Sec.—Treas.—G. Hosking, Vegreville
Councillors—John Finlay, Vegreville
S. Olsonberg, Mannville.

Vermilion Division A.T.A.
President—Jas. Smith, Kitscoty
Vice-Pres.—Hugh Doherty, Marwayne
Sec.—Treas.—Clark Richardson, Paradise Valley
Councillors—Frank H. Walker, Vermilion; Jas. Smith, Kitscoty.

Constitution Committee
The convention committee is comprised of James Smith of Kitscoty, president; Hugh Teskey, Wainwright, vice-president; S. Olsonberg of Mannville, secretary-treasurer.
